When you're making a beautiful chest of drawers, you're working on it as a whole. You don't leave away the unnoticeable part, just cause you don't see or use it. You know you got a beautiful, quality piece of work in your room at night.

Change is difficult to be accepted. People stick to whatever they're used to, thinking it's all they need, instead of looking forward making their life easier. But with time, people will see the good. IT and medicine alone will change the world completely 20 years from what it is today.

Our goal is to connect the world. We are making this possible by giving the options to the people to share whatever they want and connect with whoever they want wherever they are.
